BELLSOUTH TELECOMMUNICATIONS, INC.
PROPOSED ORDER

I. PROCEDURAL BACKGROUND

This matter comes before the Commission upon a Petition for Arbitration filed by the Joint Petitioners<sup>1</sup> pursuant to Section 252 of the federal Telecommunications Act of 1996. The <sup>1</sup> “Joint Petitioners” refers collectively to Xspedius Communications, LLC (“Xspedius”) and NewSouth Communications Corp. (“NewSouth”), which during the course of this proceeding merged with NuVox Communications, Inc. (“NuVox”), with the surviving entity being NuVox. Originally, KMC Telecom V, Inc. and KMC Telecom III, LLC also were parties to this arbitration proceeding. However, on May 27, 2005, the KMC entities withdrew their petition for arbitration, and the Commission subsequently accepted KMC’s withdrawal with prejudice. (SC Tr. at 12-13). Thus, the KMC entities are no longer parties to this proceeding.

Joint Petitioners initially filed their Petition for Arbitration (“Initial Petition”) with the Commission on February 11, 2004.<sup>2</sup> BellSouth filed its Response to the Initial Petition on March 8, 2004.<sup>3</sup> On October 6, 2004, the Commission entered an Order granting the Parties’ Joint Motion to withdraw the Initial Petition “without prejudice, and under the terms stated in the Joint Motion to Withdraw.”<sup>4</sup>

In accordance with that Order, the Joint Petitioners subsequently filed the Petition for Arbitration (“Petition”) that is the subject of this proceeding on March 11, 2005. The Petition identified the same 107 unresolved issues (excluding subparts) that had been included in the Initial Petition, as well as certain Supplemental Issues (Items 108-114). The Supplemental Issues addressed USTA II<sup>5</sup> and the Interim Rules Order issued by the Federal Communications Commission (“FCC”) in WC Docket No. 04-313, CC Docket No. 01-338. BellSouth filed its Answer to the Petition on April 5, 2005.

The Evidentiary Hearing in this matter was held on June 1, 2005, and June 13, 2006. BellSouth submitted the pre-filed testimony of Kathy Blake, Scot Ferguson, and Eric Fogle. The Joint Petitioners submitted the pre-filed testimony of Hamilton Russell/Susan Berlin,<sup>6</sup> James Falvey, Marva Johnson, John Fury, Robert Collins, and Jerry Willis. The Office of Regulatory Staff (“ORS”) did not present a witness, but counsel for ORS appeared at the hearing and

<sup>4</sup> Order No. 2004-472-C in Docket No. 2004-42-C. The Order explains that the withdrawal would “allow the parties to incorporate the negotiation of those issues precipitated by United States Telecom Association v. FCC, 359 F.3d 554 (D.C. Cir. 2004)(“USTA II”), as well as to continue to negotiate previously identified issues . . . .”

<sup>5</sup> United States Telecom Association v. FCC, 359 F.3d 554 (D.C. Cir. 2004).

<sup>6</sup> On June 13, 2006, the Commission allowed NuVox witness Susan Berlin to adopt the pre-filed Rebuttal testimony and the hearing room testimony that was originally presented by Hamilton Russell and that was the subject of various pleadings and oral arguments.

participated in the cross-examination of witnesses presented by the Joint Petitioners and BellSouth.

The Commission gave the Parties the opportunity to submit Post-Hearing Briefs and Proposed Orders by July 26, 2006. The Commission has carefully reviewed these submissions, the evidence of record,<sup>7</sup> and the controlling law. The Commission's rulings on the thirteen remaining unresolved issues are set forth in this Order.<sup>8</sup>

II. LEGAL STANDARDS UNDER THE 1996 ACT

Sections 251 and 252 of the 1996 Act encourage negotiations between Parties to reach local interconnection agreements. Section 252(a) of the 1996 Act requires incumbent local exchange carriers ("ILECs") to negotiate the particular terms and conditions of agreements to fulfill the duties described in Sections 251(b) and 251(c)(2)-(6). As part of the negotiation

<sup>7</sup> By Directive dated May 31, 2005, the Hearing Officer granted – with one exception -- the Parties' joint motion regarding hearing procedure. Accordingly, in addition to the transcript of the June 1, 2005 and June 13, 2006 hearings before the Commission, the record in this proceeding also includes: the hearing transcript (including exhibits) from the Florida and Georgia proceedings; the Parties' responses to Florida Staff Discovery Requests; the Parties' responses to Discovery Requests submitted by the other Party; and the depositions (including exhibits) taken by the Parties and by the Florida Staff.

<sup>8</sup> As a result of various rulings in this docket and continued negotiations by the Parties, only 13 issues remain for the Commission to resolve. On March 11, 2005, the FCC's Final Unbundling Rules in FCC 04-290, WC Docket No. 04-313, CC Docket No. 01-338 (rel. Feb. 4, 2005) ("TRRO") became effective. No issues in this arbitration substantively address the TRRO because that decision was not effective until March 2005 – after the time period for identifying issues to be arbitrated in this proceeding closed. Nevertheless, Issues 23, 108, 111, 113 and 114 are similar if not identical to issues that were presented in the Commission's Generic Change of Law Proceeding (Docket No. 2004-316-C) relating to changes of law resulting from the TRO and the TRRO. Consequently, on May 31, 2005, the Hearing Officer granted the Parties' joint request to move these issues to the Generic Change of Law Proceeding for consideration and resolution. Similarly, because the TRRO also rendered moot several arbitration issues relating to the Interim Rules Order, the Hearing Officer also found on May 31, 2005 that Issues 109, 110, and 112 were moot and removed them from the arbitration. Finally, because they were similar, if not identical, to issues presented in the Generic Change of Law Docket (Docket No. 2004-316-C), the Commission removed Issues 26, 36-38, and 51 from this arbitration for consideration and resolution in that generic docket. (SC Tr. at 11-12). This Order, therefore, does not address the merits of any of these issues.

process, the 1996 Act allows a party to petition a state Commission for arbitration of unresolved issues.<sup>9</sup> The petition must identify the issues resulting from the negotiations that are resolved, as well as those that are unresolved.<sup>10</sup> The petitioning party must submit along with its petition “all relevant documentation concerning: (1) the unresolved issues; (2) the position of each of the Parties with respect to those issues; and (3) any other issues discussed and resolved by the Parties.”<sup>11</sup> A non-petitioning party to a negotiation under this section may respond to the other party’s petition and provide such additional information as it wishes within 25 days after the Commission receives the petition.<sup>12</sup>

The 1996 Act limits a state commission’s consideration of any petition (and any response thereto) to the unresolved issues set forth in the petition and in the response.<sup>13</sup> Further, an ILEC can only be required to arbitrate and negotiate issues related to Section 251 of the 1996 Act, and the Commission can only arbitrate non-251 issues to the extent they are required for implementation of the interconnection agreement.<sup>14</sup> Issues or topics not specifically related to these areas are outside the scope of an arbitration proceeding, and the Commission’s role is to resolve the parties’ open issues to “meet the requirements of Section 251, including the regulations prescribed by the [FCC].”<sup>15</sup>

II. DISCUSSION OF REMAINING UNRESOLVED ISSUES

In this section, the Commission discusses its findings and conclusions regarding each of the thirteen issues that remain for the Commission to resolve.

Issue 4: What should be the limitation of each Party's liability in circumstances other than gross negligence or willful misconduct? (Agreement GT&C, Section 10.4.1)

The Joint Petitioners propose language that would limit each Party's liability for negligent acts to 7.5 percent of amounts paid or payable at the time the claim arose, subject to several caveats and conditions. Under this proposed language, as of the end of the three-year term of the agreement, BellSouth's liability to NuVox would be capped at more than $8 million, while NuVox's liability to BellSouth would be capped at a mere $2,700.<sup>16</sup> Conversely, BellSouth's proposed language limits each Party's liability for negligent acts to bill credits. For the following reasons, the Commission adopts BellSouth's proposed language on this issue.

Both state and federal courts in South Carolina have ruled that sound public policy supports limiting a telephone company's liability for negligent acts that are related to regulated operations.<sup>17</sup> As these courts have recognized, "[r]easonable utility rates are in part dependent on such limitations."<sup>18</sup> The same reasoning applies in this arbitration proceeding.

The 1996 Act requires BellSouth to negotiate interconnection agreements with the Joint Petitioners in good faith.<sup>19</sup> Moreover, if the Parties do not mutually agree to different rates,<sup>20</sup> the 1996 Act obligates BellSouth to charge the Joint Petitioners cost-based rates for certain interconnection and for network elements that remain subject to the Act's unbundling obligations.<sup>21</sup> The cost-based rates the Commission approved for BellSouth's interconnection or unbundled network elements ("UNEs") in South Carolina do not take into account any costs

BellSouth would incur if it suddenly lost its limitation of liability for negligent acts.<sup>22</sup> Were these rates to be adjusted to include such costs, they clearly would be higher than the rates that exist today and competitive local exchange carriers (“CLECs”) like the Joint Petitioners would have to pay more for interconnection and for UNEs than they pay today. BellSouth’s proposed language, therefore, allows the Joint Petitioners to pay BellSouth lower rates for certain interconnection and for UNEs than they would pay if BellSouth’s liability were not limited in the manner proposed by BellSouth.

In addition to being consistent with the South Carolina court decisions discussed above, the Commission’s adoption of BellSouth’s proposed language also is consistent with decisions of the FCC’s Wireline Competition Bureau,<sup>23</sup> decisions rendered by at least five other state Commissions that have considered this same issue in companion arbitration dockets,<sup>24</sup> and

Further, the Commission finds that BellSouth's proposed language embodies the same standard that applies to BellSouth's retail customers<sup>26</sup> and the same standard that has governed the relationship between BellSouth and the Joint Petitioners for the last eight years.<sup>27</sup> Moreover, the Joint Petitioners acknowledge that limiting liability to the provision of bill credits is "probably the current practice" in the industry.<sup>28</sup> In contrast, the Joint Petitioners are aware of no interconnection agreement that contains language that is identical or similar to what they propose here,<sup>29</sup> and none of the Joint Petitioners have the type of limitation of liability language they are proposing in their tariffs or standard retail contracts with South Carolina customers.<sup>30</sup> Instead, like BellSouth, the Joint Petitioners limit their liability to bill credits.<sup>31</sup>

In support of their proposed language, the Joint Petitioners' rely on limitation of liability provisions that allegedly appear in certain commercial contracts.<sup>32</sup> This docket, however, does not address commercial contracts that are negotiated at arms length. Instead, it does address interconnection agreements that BellSouth is required to negotiate and arbitrate pursuant to Section 252 of the 1996 Act. As the Fourth Circuit has explained,

“[w]hen the parties are . . . negotiating [an interconnection agreement], many of their disputes will have been previously resolved by among other things, FCC Rules and interpretations, prior state commission rulings and interpretations, and agreements reached with other CLECs – all of which are a matter of public record. . . . In this light, many so-called ‘negotiated’ provisions [in interconnection agreements] represent nothing more than an attempt to comply with the requirements of the 1996 Act.”<sup>33</sup>

The North Carolina Commission also has found that interconnection agreements are “not to be treated as typical commercial contracts,”<sup>34</sup> and the United States District Court for the Southern District of Mississippi reached the same conclusion in its recent decision overturning the Mississippi Public Service Commission’s interpretation of the TRRO:

If the FCC’s Order is viewed not merely as a general regulation which bears on the proper interpretation of the interconnection agreements but as an outright abrogation of provisions of parties’ interconnection agreements, consideration of its jurisdiction to act in the premises must take into account that interconnection agreements are “not ... ordinary private contract[s],” and are “not to be construed as ... traditional contract[s] but as ... instrument[s] arising within the context of ongoing federal and state regulation.”<sup>35</sup>

In light of this precedent, the Commission finds that the Joint Petitioners' reliance on limitation of liability provisions that allegedly appear in certain commercial contracts is misplaced.

Similarly, the Commission finds that the Joint Petitioners' reliance on off-tariff contracts they have negotiated with some of their own retail customers is misplaced, because the Joint Petitioners are in a much different situation when they negotiate these contracts than BellSouth is in when it arbitrates provisions of an interconnection agreement. When the Joint Petitioners negotiate contracts with their retail customers, they can make the business decision to "walk away from the negotiating table" rather than agree to alter their standard limitation of liability language with an end user. They can also seek to recover any increased liabilities that may be associated with deviating from their standard language by charging negotiated rather than TELRIC rates. In sharp contrast, BellSouth does not have these options when it negotiates an interconnection agreement with CLECs under the 1996 Act. BellSouth cannot refuse to enter into an interconnection agreement with the Joint Petitioners and must charge TELRIC rates for interconnection and UNEs that it is required to provide under such agreements. Further, whenever Joint Petitioners do make the business decision to deviate from their standard limitation of liability language after assessing the risk of a particular customer, the Joint Petitioners do not have to consider the prospect that every other potential customer in South Carolina could be entitled to those same terms and conditions as a matter of law.

For the foregoing reasons, the Commission adopts BellSouth's proposed language and orders the Parties to include that language in their agreement.

Issue 5: BellSouth Issue Statement: If the CLEC does not have in its contracts with end users and/or tariffs standard industry limitations of liability, who should bear the resulting risks? Joint Petitioners' Issue Statement: To the extent that a Party does not or is unable to include specific limitation of liability terms in all of its tariffs and End User contracts (past, present and future), should it be obligated to indemnify the other Party for liabilities not limited? (GT&C, Section 10.4.2)

The Commission finds that if a CLEC end user brings a claim against BellSouth for a matter related to the interconnection agreement, BellSouth should be in the same position that it would be in if the CLEC end user was a BellSouth end user. Thus, to the extent the Joint Petitioners decide to not limit their liability in accordance with industry standards, the Joint Petitioners should indemnify or reimburse BellSouth for any loss BellSouth sustains as a result of that decision or action. This is consistent with decisions rendered by at least five other state Commissions that have considered this same issue in companion arbitration dockets<sup>36</sup> and of at least two state Commissions that considered this issue in a different context.<sup>37</sup>

<sup>36</sup> See Florida Order at 10 (“... CLECs have the ability to limit their liability through their customer agreements and/or tariffs. If a CLEC does not limit its liability through its customer agreements and/or tariffs, then the CLEC should bear the resulting risk.”); Mississippi Order at 15 (same); Georgia Order at 5 (adopting Staff recommendation to “order that should Joint Petitioners not limit their liability in accordance with BellSouth tariffs that the Joint Petitioners should indemnify BellSouth for any loss BellSouth sustains because of that decision” and noting that “[i]t would not be fair for BellSouth to be put at an increased risk as a result of a CLEC’s business decision to offer an end user a more favorable limitation of liability provision in their service agreement”); Kentucky Order at 4 (“Joint Petitioners should use the industry standard limitation of liability in their relationship with their end-users to limit the exposure to which BellSouth would be subject in the absence of such industry standard language.”); North Carolina Order at 13 (“There is no evidence the proposed language has caused a dispute or adversely affected a third party or that the [CLECs] have in fact relaxed their limitation of liability language. . . . The Commission concludes that if a party elects not to place standard industry limitations of liability in its contracts with end users or in its tariffs, that party shall indemnify the other party for any loss resulting from this decision.”).

The language the Commission adopts is in the Joint Petitioners' current interconnection agreements, and it has never been the subject of any dispute.<sup>38</sup> Further, the Joint Petitioners currently have limitation of liability language in their tariffs and contracts; they believe that their language is the maximum limit allowed by law; they have no plans to remove this language; their tariffs are in effect today; and they intend to enforce tariff provisions limiting their liability.<sup>39</sup> In fact, as conceded by NuVox, having unlimited liability is not a prudent business move.<sup>40</sup>

The Joint Petitioners correctly note that the Parties cannot limit the rights of third Parties via the Parties' interconnection agreement, but that has no application here. The language the Commission adopts does not limit the rights of any third party or dictate the terms by which the Joint Petitioners can offer service to their customers. Instead, like the language that has governed the Parties' relationship for the last several years, the language adopted by the Commission imposes obligations upon the Joint Petitioners (not their customers) in the event the Joint Petitioner make a business decision to not limit their liability within industry standards.

Additionally, the Joint Petitioners' end users are not purchasing services out of BellSouth's tariffs and are not under contract with BellSouth.<sup>41</sup> Accordingly, if the Joint Petitioners agree to pay a customer $1,000 if they fail to provision a loop within a specific time period, and if BellSouth misses the due date for the loop, the Joint Petitioners could seek to recover the $1,000 they agreed to pay their customer from BellSouth through the indemnification language. If that customer were a BellSouth customer, however, BellSouth's total exposure would be for bill credits. The Commission finds that BellSouth should not be exposed to greater liability than otherwise contemplated simply because the end user is a CLEC end user rather than a BellSouth end user.

For the foregoing reasons, the Commission adopts BellSouth's proposed language and orders the Parties to include that language in their agreement.

Issue 6: BellSouth Issue Statement: How should indirect, incidental or consequential damages be defined for purposes of the Agreement? Joint Petitioners' Issue Statement: Should the Agreement expressly state that liability for claims or suits for damages incurred by CLEC's (or BellSouth's) customers/End Users resulting directly and in a reasonably foreseeable manner from BellSouth's (or CLEC's) performance of obligations set forth in the Agreement are not indirect, incidental or consequential damages? (GT&C Section 10.4.4)

The Parties agree that they will not be liable to each other for indirect, consequential or incidental damages.<sup>42</sup> The Joint Petitioners, however, are attempting to preserve certain damage claims their end users may have against BellSouth, and the purpose of the Joint Petitioners' language is to make sure that certain end user damage claims against BellSouth are not to be construed as incidental, consequential, or indirect damages:

- Q. So the purpose of your language is to make sure that nothing that NuVox and BellSouth says in this agreement restricts, impairs, or limits whatever rights and damage claims your end users may have; is that right?
- A. That's correct. So that NuVox is not left holding the bag for BellSouth's negligence.<sup>43</sup>

The Commission finds that the Joint Petitioners' language is unnecessary and defeats limitation of liability protections provided by language adopted by the Commission.

NuVox's witness testified that the purpose of the Joint Petitioners' proposed language is to make certain that end user damages that arise directly and proximately from BellSouth's negligence, gross negligence or willful misconduct cannot be termed in this agreement as incidental or consequential.<sup>44</sup> The language proposed by the Joint Petitioners, however, does not address this concern. Instead, it provides that no Party would be responsible for indirect, incidental, or consequential damages “provided that neither the foregoing nor any other provision of this Section 10 shall be deemed or construed as imposing any limitation on the liability of a Party for claims or suits for damages incurred by End Users of the other Party or by such other Party vis-à-vis its End Users to the extent such damages result directly and in a reasonably foreseeable manner from the first Party’s performance of services hereunder . . . .”<sup>45</sup> Damages that are direct and foreseeable, however, cannot also be indirect, incidental or consequential. The Commission, therefore, fails to see why this language is necessary.

Furthermore, notwithstanding the Parties’ agreement that there should be some limitation of liability between them, the Joint Petitioners’ language defeats this limitation by excluding the limitation of liability provision for damages “incurred by such other Party vis-à-vis its End Users.” Thus, as long as the Joint Petitioners brought a claim for damages incurred by the Joint Petitioners “vis-à-vis its End Users” (whatever that means), BellSouth’s liability to the Joint Petitioners could be unlimited. The Commission is unwilling to allow the language proposed by the Joint Petitioners to circumvent already agreed upon concepts. This is consistent with decisions rendered by at least four other state Commissions that have considered this same issue in companion arbitration dockets.<sup>46</sup>

For the foregoing reasons, the Commission adopts BellSouth's proposed language and orders the Parties to include that language in their agreement.

Issue 7: What should the indemnification obligations of the parties be under this Agreement? (GT&C, Section 10.5)

In most cases, the Joint Petitioners will be the receiving Party and BellSouth will be the providing Party under the interconnection agreement.<sup>47</sup> Thus, in most cases, the Joint Petitioner's language requires BellSouth to indemnify the Joint Petitioners for "(1) [BellSouth's] failure to abide by Applicable Law, or (2) injuries or damages arising out of or in connection with the Agreement to the extent caused by [BellSouth's] negligence, gross negligence or willful misconduct."<sup>48</sup> Under the Joint Petitioners' proposed language, however, the Joint Petitioners would only indemnify BellSouth "against any claim for libel, slander or invasion of privacy arising from the content of [the Joint Petitioners'] own communications."<sup>49</sup> Thus, BellSouth would have virtually unlimited indemnification obligations to the Joint Petitioners while the Joint Petitioners would have essentially no indemnification obligations to BellSouth.

The Joint Petitioners are aware of no other interconnection agreement that contains indemnification provisions similar to what they are proposing,<sup>50</sup> and they have not presented evidence of past history or dealings between the Parties to support their proposed language. In fact, none of the Joint Petitioners are aware of any instance where they previously sought indemnification from BellSouth.<sup>51</sup> Although the Joint Petitioners' rely on what are purportedly common provisions in unrelated commercial contracts, this reliance is misplaced for the reasons explained in the discussion of Issue 4 above.

Moreover, under the Joint Petitioners' language, if BellSouth were sued by a third party solely as the result of the negligence of a Joint Petitioner, BellSouth would have no indemnification rights against the Joint Petitioners.<sup>52</sup> As a provider of services to the Joint Petitioners, however, BellSouth should be indemnified by the Joint Petitioners for claims that their end users bring against BellSouth. The Joint Petitioners expect as much when they are the party providing services to others -- NuVox's tariffs require its end users to indemnify NuVox for "any act or omission," and they do not require NuVox to indemnify its end users in any instance.<sup>53</sup>

Finally, the Joint Petitioners' proposed language is inconsistent with the FCC's Wireline Competition Bureau's well-reasoned precedent on this issue. In the Virginia Arbitration Order, the Bureau rejected the attempts by a CLEC (WorldCom) to include similar, expansive indemnification language in an interconnection agreement with an ILEC (Verizon). The Bureau explained:

Verizon has no duty to provide perfect service to its own customers; therefore, it is unreasonable to place that duty on Verizon to provide perfect service to WorldCom. In addition, we are not convinced that Verizon should indemnify WorldCom for all claims made by WorldCom's customers against WorldCom. Verizon has no contractual relationship with WorldCom's customers, and therefore lacks the ability to limit its liability in such instances, as it may with its own customers. As the carrier with the contractual relationship with its own customers, WorldCom is in the best position to limit its own liability against its customers in a manner that conforms with this provision.<sup>54</sup>

The Minnesota Commission came to a similar conclusion when presented with this issue.<sup>55</sup>

In contrast to the language proposed by the Joint Petitioners, BellSouth's proposed language is consistent with the standards in the industry (including the Joint Petitioners' tariffs) as it requires the receiving Party to indemnify the providing Party in two limited situations: (1) claims for libel, slander, or invasion of privacy arising from the content of the receiving Party's own communications; or (2) any claim, loss, or damaged claimed by the "End User or customer of the Party receiving services arising from such company's use or reliance on the providing Party's services, actions, duties or obligations arising out of this Agreement."<sup>56</sup> This language is considerably more narrow than the Joint Petitioners' proposal, which would require BellSouth to indemnify the Joint Petitioners for any claims, regardless of whether it was brought by an end user. It also is consistent with the rulings of the FCC Common Carrier Bureau and the Minnesota Commission discussed above.

For the foregoing reasons, the Commission adopts BellSouth's proposed language and orders the Parties to include that language in their agreement.

<sup>55</sup> The Minnesota Commission rejected the attempts by a CLEC (AT&T) to make and ILEC (Qwest) indemnify the CLEC for "any breach of Applicable Law," finding that "indemnity clauses [are] means for allocating foreseen risks, not [] means to induce Parties to insure one another against unanticipated and unbounded possibilities" and that AT&T's language "would make Parties potentially liable for another party's conduct far removed from the ICA." 2003 WL 22870903 at *17.

This issue is about who decides, in the first instance, disputes about the interconnection agreement that are within the expertise or jurisdiction of the Commission or the FCC. BellSouth believes the Commission or the FCC should decide, in the first instance, disputes about the interconnection agreement that are within their expertise or jurisdiction, subject to review by the Courts.<sup>57</sup> The Joint Petitioners, on the other hand, want to bring all such disputes to a court of law in the first instance, even if the Commission has jurisdiction and/or expertise to resolve the dispute. Moreover, under the Joint Petitioners' proposed language, a dispute about an interconnection agreement this Commission arbitrates and approves could be decided by a court in a state other than South Carolina.<sup>58</sup> For the following reasons, the Commission adopts BellSouth's proposed language.

Interconnection agreements achieved through either voluntary negotiations or through compulsory arbitration are established pursuant to Section 252 of the 1996 Act. Section 252(e)(1) requires that any interconnection agreement adopted by negotiation or arbitration be submitted to the Commission for approval. The Commission, therefore, is in the best position to resolve disputes that are within its expertise or jurisdiction and that relate to the interpretation or enforcement of an agreement that it approves pursuant to the 1996 Act.<sup>59</sup>

The U.S. Court of Appeals for the Eleventh Circuit used this same rationale to find that the 1996 Act authorizes state commissions to interpret interconnection agreements.<sup>60</sup>

<sup>60</sup> See BellSouth Telecommunications, Inc. v. MCIMetro Access Transmission Services, Inc., 317 F.3d 1270, 1277 (11th Cir. 2003). As stated by the court: "the language of § 252 persuades us that in granting to the public service commissions the power to approve or reject interconnection agreements, Congress intended to include the power to interpret and enforce in the first instance and to subject their determination to challenges in the federal courts." Id. (emphasis added).

Similarly, the FCC has held that, “due to its role in the approval process, a state commission is well-suited to address disputes arising from interconnection agreements.”<sup>61</sup> The Kentucky Commission also has ruled that “disputes arising under . . . interconnection agreements must be brought before the Commission before they proceed to a court of general jurisdiction.”<sup>62</sup>

Contrary to these well-reasoned decisions, the Joint Petitioners’ proposed language would allow them to ask a court in another state to resolve disputes about South Carolina interconnection agreements that this Commission arbitrates and that this Commission approves.<sup>63</sup> This is not an appropriate result. Both federal and state law entrust this Commission to decide such issues in the first instance, and this Commission is willing and able to carry out its responsibility to do so. Disputes that address an interconnection agreement approved by this Commission, and that are within the jurisdiction and/or expertise of this Commission, should be presented to the Commission for resolution in the first instance.

Adopting BellSouth’s language is appropriate and does not result in this Commission changing or limiting the jurisdiction of any court. Rather, BellSouth’s language identifies the specific forums, all of which may have jurisdiction, that the Parties will use to address specific interconnection agreement disputes in the first instance. Any such determination, of course, remains subject to review by the courts.

For the foregoing reasons, the Commission adopts BellSouth’s proposed language and orders the Parties to include that language in their agreement.

This issue is not about whether BellSouth intends to comply with Applicable Law – BellSouth has agreed to do so.<sup>64</sup> Instead, this issue centers on how the Parties should handle disputes when one Party asserts that an obligation, right, or other requirement relating to telecommunications law is applicable even though that obligation, right, or requirements is not expressly memorialized in the interconnection agreement. BellSouth is concerned that after the Parties and this Commission have spent a great deal of time negotiating and arbitrating an interconnection agreement that implements the law that was in effect at the time of the agreement’s execution, the Joint Petitioners will: review a telecommunications rule or order that was in effect at the time the agreement was executed; interpret that rule or order in a manner that BellSouth could not have anticipated; claim that their after-the-fact interpretation creates a contractual obligation that is not specified in the interconnection agreement (even though the Joint Petitioners did not raise the issue during two years of negotiations); and seek to enforce that purported obligation against BellSouth.

The Joint Petitioners concede that “we’ve done that from time to time,”<sup>65</sup> and the North Carolina EEL audit proceeding was one such time.<sup>66</sup> The interconnection agreement at issue in that case was executed after the FCC issued its Supplemental Order on Clarification (“SOC”) that, in part, addressed EEL audits. Although the SOC made it clear that parties could agree to different EEL audit provisions, and although the interconnection agreement contained EEL audit <sup>64</sup> See GTC at § 32.1. Section 32.1 defines “Applicable Law” as “all applicable federal, state, and local statutes, laws, rules, regulations, codes, effective orders, injunctions, judgments and binding decisions and decrees that relate to its obligations under this Agreement.” BellSouth has agreed to comply with Applicable Law.

provisions that were different than those set forth in the SOC, NewSouth (one of the Joint Petitioners here) used this same “Applicable Law” argument to claim that all of the EEL audit provisions in the SOC were automatically incorporated into the interconnection agreement. The North Carolina Commission rejected NewSouth’s argument:

NewSouth has also argued that the general principle that agreements are interpreted in light of the body of law existing at the time agreements are executed is part of Georgia law. NewSouth applies this principle by arguing that the entire SOC, as part of the existing law at the time the Agreement was executed, must be read into the Agreement, and that the Parties would have had to have included an express statement excluding the SOC from the Agreement if they wanted to be relieved from the requirements and restrictions of the SOC. The Commission does not agree.<sup>67</sup>

The North Carolina Commission explained that “having entered into the Agreement, the Parties’ dealings are now governed by the specific terms of the Agreement and not the general provisions of Section 251 and 252 of the 1996 Act or FCC rulings and orders issued pursuant to those stated sections.”<sup>68</sup>

The Commission finds that the North Carolina Commission’s reasoning is persuasive. An interconnection agreement should provide certainty as to the Parties’ respective obligations, and the Commission finds that BellSouth’s proposed language does just that. It ensures that (1) no Party is penalized by the lack of clarity or silence in this agreement relating to its obligations under telecommunications law; and (2) no Party has the opportunity to renegotiate provisions of the contract based on a new reading of Applicable Law. BellSouth’s proposed language also is consistent with decisions rendered by at least four other state Commissions that have considered this same issue in companion arbitration dockets.<sup>69</sup>

In addition to being inconsistent with these rulings, the Commission finds that the Joint Petitioners' position on this issue is unworkable and contrary to the purpose of negotiating interconnection agreements in the first place. The Joint Petitioners, for instance, take the position that the law in effect at the time of execution of the agreement is automatically incorporated into the Agreement, unless the Parties expressly agree otherwise.<sup>70</sup> Taken to its logical extreme, this means that interconnection agreements would consist only of a list of all instances where the Parties agreed to something other than Applicable Law. NuVox's own witness, however, conceded that he could not list all of the instances in which the Parties agreed to something other than Applicable Law.<sup>71</sup> Moreover, the Commission finds that one important purpose of an interconnection agreement is to go beyond generically agreeing to comply with the law by memorializing the Parties' agreement as to how they will go about doing so on a practical, operational, and day-to-day basis. Consequently, the Joint Petitioners' language is unworkable and defeats the entire purpose of negotiation and arbitration pursuant to Section 252 of the 1996 Act (as well as the efforts of the Parties since June 2003).<sup>72</sup>

<sup>69</sup> See Florida Order at 16 ("The purpose of an agreement is to create specific obligations to do or not to do a particular thing. Issue 65: Should BellSouth be allowed to charge the CLEC a Tandem Intermediary Charge for the transport and termination of Local Transit Traffic and ISP-Bound Transit Traffic? (Attachment 3, Section 10.8.1 (NCS/NVS))<sup>73</sup>

The FCC's Wireline Competition Bureau has declined to find that ILECs like BellSouth have an obligation to provide a transit function at TELRIC prices:

We reject AT&T's proposal because it would require Verizon to provide transit service at TELRIC rates without limitation. While Verizon as an incumbent LEC is required to provide interconnection at forward-looking cost under the Commission's rules implementing section 251(c)(2), the Commission has not had occasion to determine whether incumbent LECs have a duty to provide transit service under this provision of the statute, nor do we find clear Commission precedent or rules declaring such duty. In the absence of such a precedent or rule, we decline, on delegated authority, to determine for the first time that Verizon has a section 251(c)(2) duty to provide transit service at TELRIC rates. Furthermore, any duty Verizon may have under section 251(a)(1) of the Act to provide transit service would not require that service to be priced at TELRIC.<sup>74</sup>

The Bureau subsequently reaffirmed these principles in denying AT&T's request for reconsideration, stating that (1) it "did not find that Verizon had a legal obligation to provide transit service at TELRIC"; (2) it did "not agree with AT&T's assertion that the Virginia Commission would have been required to agree with AT&T that Verizon must provide transit service under the Act, nor do we agree that the Bureau was required to so conclude."<sup>75</sup> The Bureau's analysis was confirmed by the FCC itself in the Triennial Review Order. the FCC clearly pronounced that “[t]o date, the [FCC]’s rules have not required incumbent LECs to provide transiting.”<sup>76</sup> Accordingly, BellSouth has no obligation to provide transit service to NuVox.

Although not required to do so, BellSouth has voluntarily agreed to provide transit service to NuVox. BellSouth, however, has not voluntarily agreed to do so at TELRIC rates. The FCC rulings discussed above make it clear that BellSouth is not required to charge TELRIC rates for any transit function it voluntarily provides. Moreover, in providing transit service, BellSouth incurs costs in (1) “sending records to the CLECs identifying the originating carrier”; (2) “ensuring that BellSouth is not being billed for a third party’s transit traffic”; and (3) handling “disputes arising from the failure on the part of the CLECs to enter into traffic exchange arrangements with terminating carriers.”<sup>77</sup> These costs are not being recovered through tandem switching, common transport, or any other charges in the interconnection agreement.<sup>78</sup> BellSouth, therefore, is entitled to charge a non-TELRIC TIC rate for the transit service it voluntarily provides NuVox (and that NuVox uses).

BellSouth proposes a TIC rate of $.0015. This is compatible with the $.0025 composite rate approved by the Georgia Commission,<sup>79</sup> and it is the same as the $.0015 additive rate approved by the Florida Commission. In approving this same additive rate, the Florida Commission stated:

The fact that the TIC is an additive is also noted, and we understand there are costs associated with providing a transiting function, such as providing billing records to the terminating carrier and the cost of reconciling improper billing by the terminating carrier when BellSouth is the intermediary or transiting carrier. . . . Therefore, we find BellSouth's costs for providing the billing records that it indicated were not being recovered through tandem switching and common transport charged and the fact that some transiting calls may require reconciliation when third party carriers improperly bill BellSouth must be recognized.<sup>80</sup>

The Commission finds that this reasoning is persuasive.

In arguing against the TIC, NuVox claims that it does not want the call records that BellSouth sends to the terminating carrier as part of the transit service. Provision of these records, however, is part of BellSouth's transit service. If NuVox does not want to receive or pay for these records, it can bypass BellSouth's transit service by directly interconnecting with other carriers like other Joint Petitioners do.<sup>81</sup>

For the foregoing reasons, the Commission adopts BellSouth's proposed language and orders the Parties to include that language in their agreement.

Issue 86B: (B) How should disputes over alleged unauthorized access to CSR information be handled under the Agreement? (Attachment 6, Sections 2.5.5.2 and 2.5.5.3)

Customer service record ("CSR") information contains Customer Proprietary Network Information ("CPNI"), and BellSouth and the Joint Petitioners have an obligation under federal law to protect the unauthorized disclosure of CPNI.<sup>82</sup> Given these obligations, the Parties have agreed to refrain from accessing CSR information without an appropriate Letter of Authorization (“LOA”) from a customer and to “access CSR information only in strict compliance with applicable laws.”<sup>83</sup> The Parties also have agreed that upon request by one Party, the other Party “shall use best efforts” to provide the requesting Party an appropriate LOA within seven (7) business days.<sup>84</sup> Seven business days equates to at least nine (9) calendar days.<sup>85</sup>

Under BellSouth’s most recent proposed language, if the Party receiving such a request fails to produce an appropriate LOA within the allotted time period (7 business days), the requesting Party will provide written notice specifying the alleged noncompliance and advising that access to ordering systems may be suspended in five (5) days if such noncompliance does not cease.<sup>86</sup> The requesting Party will send this notice via email to a person designated by the other Party to receive such notice.<sup>87</sup> The Commission finds that this proposal is reasonable and appropriate.

The Joint Petitioners have acknowledged that producing an appropriate LOA is something that could take as little as two (2) business days.<sup>88</sup> Additionally, termination of service because of fraudulent, prohibited, or unlawful use of service is not a new concept as the Joint Petitioners’ South Carolina tariffs authorize termination under similar circumstances.<sup>89</sup>

Moreover, the Commission's regulations also allow for termination of service in cases of unauthorized use of a service or illegal or willful misuse of service.<sup>90</sup>

Under BellSouth's most recent proposed language, if the accused Party disputes the allegations of noncompliance, then the requesting Party will seek an expedited resolution of the CSR dispute from the appropriate regulatory body pursuant to the dispute resolution provisions contained in the agreement's General Terms & Conditions section.<sup>91</sup> The agreement's dispute resolution provisions require the Parties to continue meeting all contractual obligations while a dispute is pending.<sup>92</sup> The Commission finds, therefore, that BellSouth's most recent proposed language appropriately addresses the Joint Petitioners' concerns that BellSouth may take corrective action during the pendency of a CSR-related dispute.

This finding is consistent with the Florida Commission's decision to adopt BellSouth's proposed language for this issue:

[W]e conclude that in the event that the alleged offending party disputes the allegations of unauthorized access to CSR information . . . the alleging party shall seek expedited resolution from the appropriate regulatory body pursuant to the dispute resolution provision in the Interconnection Agreement's General Terms and Conditions section. The alleging party shall take no action to terminate the alleged offending party during any such pending regulatory proceeding. If the alleged offending party does not dispute the allegation of unauthorized access to CSR information, BellSouth may suspend or terminate service under the time lines proposed by BellSouth.<sup>93</sup>

The Commission finds that this analysis is persuasive. Moreover, under BellSouth's proposed language, prior to any action being taken by the requesting Party, the accused Party has at least

Issue 97: When should payment of charges for service be due? (Attachment 7, Section 1.4)

BellSouth proposes that the bills it sends the Joint Petitioners should be due by the next bill issuance date. The evidence of record reflects that the Joint Petitioners, like all CLECs, have a set bill date for every bill they receive from BellSouth.<sup>95</sup> For example, a NuVox invoice that is dated the 5th day of a given month will always be dated the 5th day of every month, and it will always be due by the 5th day of the following month.<sup>96</sup> The Commission finds, therefore, that based on the bill date, the Joint Petitioners know the exact date when payment is due for each bill -- by the next bill issuance date.<sup>97</sup>

The Commission further finds that BellSouth's proposed language is both reasonable and workable. This Commission and the FCC both have determined that BellSouth's billing practices are nondiscriminatory,<sup>98</sup> and the Joint Petitioners have presented no evidence to suggest otherwise in this proceeding. Additionally, the Joint Petitioners concede that their monthly billings are reasonably predictable and that Joint Petitioners themselves are in the best position to predict (or estimate) their monthly billings.<sup>99</sup> Further, NuVox receives over 1,100 bills per month from BellSouth<sup>100</sup> and, for at least a two-year period, NuVox has paid all of its BellSouth bills in a timely manner.<sup>101</sup>

<sup>97</sup> (See FL Tr. at 1032; SC Tr. at 294). The Joint Petitioners' assertions that they receive BellSouth bills in about 7 seven days or more, (Joint Petitioners Direct Testimony at 82), are not persuasive because they are based on outdated and inaccurate bill studies. (Russell FL Staff Depo. at 66); (Id at 64); (Falvey Depo at 311-312); (FL Tr. at 420-421). Instead, based on SQM aggregate results for South Carolina for April 2004 through March 2005 and the CLEC-specific results for the Joint Petitioners for the first three months of 2005, the Commission finds that CLECs and the Joint Petitioners obtain their bills from BellSouth in 3 to 4 days (FL Tr. at 417; FL BellSouth Exhibit 19; FL Tr. at 422-423; Blake Rebuttal Testimony at 38, Exhibit KKB-7.

In contrast, the Commission finds that the Joint Petitioners' proposal would result in an ever extending, revolving payment due date that would be difficult to administer. Moreover, the Joint Petitioner do not provide the payment terms they request of this Commission to their own end users. Instead, similar to BellSouth's proposal in this docket, NuVox requires its South Carolina customers to pay their bills upon receipt,<sup>102</sup> and the retail tariffs of KMC and Xspedius require their customers to pay bills within thirty (30) days of bill issuance.<sup>103</sup> Moreover, the Joint Petitioners' proposal would require modifications to BellSouth's billing systems,<sup>104</sup> but the Joint Petitioners are unwilling to pay for those modifications.<sup>105</sup>

The Commission's adoption of BellSouth's proposed language on this issue is consistent with the decisions of at least two other state Commissions in companion arbitration proceedings.<sup>106</sup> In concluding that payment of charges shall be made on or before the next bill (payment due) date, the Florida Commission specifically found that

BellSouth's current bill rendering practices are reasonable. As noted in Hearing Exhibit 2 and 19, BellSouth's SQM performance results indicate that, on average, BellSouth is delivering bills to its wholesale customers at "parity" with its own retail customers. We find BellSouth shall not be ordered to make substantive changes to its billing systems on behalf of the Joint Petitioners, and at its own expense, in order to exceed "parity" performance.<sup>107</sup>

This Commission finds this reasoning persuasive.

For the foregoing reasons, the Commission adopts BellSouth's proposed language and orders the Parties to include that language in their agreement.

Issue 100: Should CLEC be required to pay past due amounts in addition to those specified in BellSouth's notice of suspension or termination for nonpayment in order to avoid suspension or termination? (Attachment 7, Section 1.7.2)

BellSouth has the right to suspend or terminate service for nonpayment.<sup>108</sup> Further, BellSouth acknowledges that it will not commence any suspension or disconnection activity involving amounts that are subject to a billing dispute.<sup>109</sup> This issue, therefore, arises only when a Joint Petitioner does not pay undisputed amounts that are past due.<sup>110</sup>

Given these circumstances, the Commission finds that if a Joint Petitioner receives a notice of suspension or termination from BellSouth because the Joint Petitioner has not timely paid amounts that are not subject to a billing dispute, the Joint Petitioner should be required to pay all undisputed amounts that are past due as of the date of the pending suspension or termination action. In other words, if other undisputed amounts become past due between the time BellSouth issues the notice of suspension or termination and the date of the pending suspension or termination action, a Joint Petitioner should have to pay those undisputed past-due amounts as well as the undisputed past-due amounts that were identified in the notice. This is consistent with decisions rendered by at least two other state Commissions that have considered this same issue in companion arbitration dockets.<sup>111</sup>

BellSouth's proposed language provides for written notice and a reasonable opportunity for Joint Petitioners to pay past due undisputed amounts prior to service discontinuance. Additionally, as noted earlier, the Joint Petitioners know when they receive bills, they know when the bills are due, and they admit that the amount of such bills can be predicted with a reasonable degree of accuracy.<sup>112</sup> If the Joint Petitioners are not clear as what undisputed amounts are past due, they can contact BellSouth with any questions they may have regarding amounts owed, and BellSouth has committed to cooperate to promptly answer any billing related questions.<sup>113</sup>

The Joint Petitioners' expressed concern that they may have to guess as to what additional past due amounts must be paid in order to avoid suspension or termination.<sup>114</sup> BellSouth, however, will make aging reports available to CLECs that fail to timely pay undisputed amounts owed, and these reports provide, by billing account number: current charges; past due charges; disputed charges; total past due amount owed less current charges and disputed charges; and the ability to determine amounts that will become past due during the notice period.<sup>115</sup> Additionally, BellSouth's proposed language states that, upon request, BellSouth will advise the Joint Petitioners of the additional undisputed amounts that have become past due since the issuance of the original notice of suspension or termination.<sup>116</sup> This proposal appropriately addresses the "guesswork" concerns the Joint Petitioners have raised.

For the foregoing reasons, the Commission adopts BellSouth's proposed language and orders the Parties to include that language in their agreement.

Issue 101: How many months of billing should be used to determine the maximum amount of the deposit? (Attachment 7, Section 1.8.3)

A deposit reduces BellSouth's potential losses if a Joint Petitioner (or any CLEC that adopts a Joint Petitioner's interconnection agreement) ceases to pay its bills. The Parties agree that BellSouth has a right to a deposit, or to demand an additional deposit, if any Joint Petitioner fails to meet the specific and objective deposit criteria set forth in Attachment 7, Section 1.8.5.<sup>117</sup> The Commission finds that BellSouth's proposal of a two-month deposit is appropriate for several reasons.

First, BellSouth must wait over two months (74 days) before disconnecting service for non-payment under the provisions of this agreement.<sup>118</sup> Additionally, BellSouth's proposal of a deposit of no more than two months of a CLEC's actual or estimated billings is consistent with the maximum deposit amount BellSouth collects from its retail customers,<sup>119</sup> with the deposit provisions of the Joint Petitioners' South Carolina tariffs,<sup>120</sup> and with the Commission's regulations addressing deposits.<sup>121</sup> It also is consistent with the decisions of at least four state Commissions in companion arbitration dockets.<sup>122</sup> Further, BellSouth will refund, return, or release any security deposit within 30 calendar days of determining that a Joint Petitioners' creditworthiness indicates a deposit is no longer necessary.<sup>123</sup>

The Joint Petitioners' concerns that BellSouth may not act reasonably if its proposed language is adopted are inconsistent with the evidence of the Parties' experience. Although the Joint Petitioners have no maximum deposit amount in their current interconnection agreements,<sup>124</sup> BellSouth reduced NuVox's deposit in 2003 by 44% ($1.8 million letter of credit reduced to $1 million letter of credit), and it reduced NewSouth's deposit by 75% ($2.4 million cash deposit reduced to $600,000 cash).<sup>125</sup> Further, the Joint Petitioners' request for a lower maximum deposit amount for existing CLECs overlooks the fact that: a new CLEC may be in stronger financial shape than an existing CLEC;<sup>126</sup> the financial health of an existing CLEC can deteriorate;<sup>127</sup> and "BellSouth has written off over $23 million owed by CLECs that filed for bankruptcy."<sup>128</sup>

For the foregoing reasons, the Commission adopts BellSouth's proposed language and orders the Parties to include that language in their agreement.

Issue 102: Should the amount of the deposit BellSouth requires from CLEC be reduced by past due amounts owed by BellSouth to CLEC? (Attachment 7, Section 1.8.3.1)

As noted above, BellSouth is within its rights to protect itself against uncollectible debts by collecting deposits from the Joint Petitioners on a non-discriminatory basis. Doing so protects the interests of BellSouth's shareholders, employees, and other customers. Further, BellSouth states that it is willing to agree that when it makes a deposit demand (or a request for additional deposit) BellSouth will reduce its deposit demand by the undisputed amount past due (if any) owed by BellSouth to any Joint Petitioners for payments pursuant to Attachment 3 of the Interconnection Agreement.<sup>129</sup> Under this proposal, upon BellSouth's payment of such amount, a Joint Petitioner would be required to immediately increase the deposit in an amount equal to such payment(s).<sup>130</sup>

The Commission finds that BellSouth's proposal is reasonable, and it is consistent with the rulings of at least five other state Commissions that have considered this same issue in companion arbitration dockets.<sup>131</sup> Under this proposal, the Joint Petitioners immediately receive the benefit of undisputed past-due amounts that BellSouth owes them, and they retain all the remedies that are available to them with regard to disputed amounts. These remedies may included assessing late payment charges, suspending service, terminating service, or initiating appropriate proceedings to resolve the dispute and collect any amounts that are, in fact, due.<sup>132</sup> The Commission, however, is unwilling to require BellSouth to reduce the amount of a deposit a Joint Petitioner is obligated to pay by disputed amounts that BellSouth allegedly owes.

For the foregoing reasons, the Commission adopts BellSouth's proposed language and orders the Parties to include that language in their agreement.

Issue 103: Should BellSouth be entitled to terminate service to CLEC pursuant to the process for termination due to non-payment if CLEC refuses to remit any deposit required by BellSouth within 30 calendar days? (Attachment 7, Section 1.8.6)

It is undisputed that BellSouth has a contractual right to a deposit.<sup>133</sup> It is undisputed that the Parties have agreed to objective and specific criteria that govern BellSouth's right to demand a deposit.<sup>134</sup> Further, it is undisputed that if a Joint Petitioner satisfies the deposit criteria, then BellSouth will refund the deposit amount within 30 calendar days, plus accrued interest.<sup>135</sup> The question presented by this issue, therefore, is what happens if a Joint Petitioner neither pays nor disputes a deposit requested by BellSouth.

Termination for non-payment of a deposit is not a novel concept. It is expressly authorized by this Commission<sup>136</sup> and the Florida Commission,<sup>137</sup> and the end user tariffs of the Joint Petitioners expressly authorize termination for non-payment of "any amounts owed to the Company."<sup>138</sup> Additionally, thirty calendar days is a reasonable time period for a Joint Petitioner to either dispute or satisfy a request for a deposit. Accordingly, the Commission finds that to protect its financial interests, BellSouth may terminate service if a Joint Petitioner fails to pay (or properly dispute) a deposit demand within 30 calendar days. This is consistent with decisions rendered by at least three other state Commissions that have considered this same issue in companion arbitration dockets.<sup>139</sup>

For the foregoing reasons, the Commission adopts BellSouth's proposed language and orders the Parties to include that language in their agreement.

CONCLUSION

The Parties are ordered to implement the Commission's resolution of the issues addressed in this Order by including in their respective Interconnection Agreements language that complies with the rulings and framework set forth in this Order. The Parties shall file these Agreements with the Commission within sixty (60) days after receipt of this Order.
